

Jim Turner, 1950-2017

“Jim Turner always called me ‘Jimmy.’ No one ever called me that, except my parents. I guess because we were both named James, and he was called ‘Jimmy’ by his friends, he figured that nickname was good enough for me. Every time he called me that, I chuckled. Farewell, Jimmy, Jim, James, J.T.” – Dr. James “Jimmy” Herndon

"Jim was a dear friend and fellow Razorback. Over the years, we ate much of the same dirt and traveled many roads together. His contributions to the field have helped make police psychology the discipline it is today. As one of the early members of SPCP, Jim touched hundreds to lives and had a lasting impact on many of us. A great friend and I will truly feel his loss for years to come. GO HOGS, PIG SOOOOOIIIIIIIEEEEE." – Dr. Wayman C. Mullins

“JT was one of the founding fathers of SPCP and a wonderful friend and colleague. We will greatly miss him.” – Dr. JoAnne Brewster

"I can attest to the fact that J.T. was a gentleman and a scholar. He was a huge fund of knowledge and even a greater source of support for those within his sphere of influence. Encounters with him always left me better educated or more lighthearted because of his ready wit. He will be missed." – Dr. Byron Greenburg

“All I keep saying about JT is how kind and generous he was, as a person and especially in mentoring others, and how intelligent. I could have just sat at his feet and listened to him - literally. He had more to teach than I had time to learn. “ – Dr. Sherry Hardin

“J.T.’s picture should be next to the definition of a True Southern Gentleman. One would have a hard time finding a kinder or gentler man. A true professional who, whenever asked, was always ready to assist a colleague. I feel fortunate to have the chance to know and work with one of the founders of our specialty.” – Dr. Jon Moss

“I only knew J.T. for the short time I have been with the society. I always knew him to be a consummate professional and dedicated to his profession. He will be greatly missed. “ – Dr. Adam Park

“Jim and I had many contacts over the years at conferences and on the phone. We both are dreamers and talked maybe every two months or so. He always was willing to answer questions and just dream together. He was the first to jump on board fully when I suggested Rome to the Society and was unbelievably supportive when I was the executive director of the society from the start. But it wasn't until I had open heart surgery a couple of years ago that I found JT at his best. He was going through medical problems also with his breathing. He called me once a week, in fact was the first call I received in the hospital after the operation. He talked to my wife during the surgery to see how it was going and to offer support. When he was in the hospital, I started calling him. He was giving support and we became mutual support for each other in our now weekly phone calls. The phone calls lasted until he passed. He was the only one that really seemed to understand how hard it was to recover when you still had so much responsibility, or put so much on yourself. There was a deep well in JT for compassion and love for others. I miss him, but feel there is someone else helping for me in heaven.” – Dr. Gary S. Aumiller

“Dr. T became a co-mentor to our SERI group of students just a couple of months ago. He provided wisdom and encouragement to all of us. His simple, yet highly effective suggestions helped me tremendously” – Constance Colevins-Tumlin, M.A., Ph.D. Candidate

“Jim was a devoted mentor to his students and he shared his love of teaching and the profession. He was a dedicated member of the faculty serving as chair of the faculty assembly and an engaged member of the I-MERIT committee. His engagement at the university and in campus events was significant and his presence will be sorely missed. This level of dedication was the mark of a man whose ethics and values were exemplary. In expected manner, Dr. Lipson noted that two hours before he died he was present for a dissertation defense on the phone. A founder of both the field of threat assessment and Delta Force his contributions will live on. His contributions to Intelligence and Counter Intelligence rose to the level of our Executive branch of government. His southern style of story-telling engaged us all as he was able to cut through that which might obfuscate to illuminate and foster connection and understandings. His interviewing skills and his consultations with organizations about employee matters were exemplary. Dr. Turner is survived by his wife and children. The students he mentored, those who were in his courses will continue to serve and draw on the wisdom he shared. Our University and community has been touched by the grace of his involvement and engagement.” – Dr. Glen Lipson

“As I read the communications being shared, I know how many have benefited and appreciated having the opportunity to be a colleague, friend, and student of Jim. May he rest in peace knowing it was a job well done.” – Dr. Tracy L. Heller

“Dr. Jim Turner was a true friend, colleague, and confidante. His southern drawl, jovial disposition and can-do attitude were hallmarks of his life. He was a man of great integrity, loyalty, and commitment in whom I relied upon as a mentor. No task was ever too big or too small for Jim. He knew just about everyone and truly understood the value of relationships. Jim did not seek notoriety but graciously shone the light upon others. He loved and respected his students and was a great role model for them. While a respected professional in his field he was foremost a devoted husband and father. I miss him.” – Dr. Eric Hickey

From everyone at the SPCP, we will miss our dear friend.
